TradingSeason Platform Terms and Conditions

Version 2026-10-12

1. Business use and authorised access

These terms apply to business clients and the individual users they authorise to access TradingSeason for training, evaluation, and workflow familiarisation.

By accepting them, you confirm that you are acting on your own behalf and, where applicable, with authority to use the platform for your employer or client organisation.

2. Simulation-only platform

TradingSeason is a simulated environment only. It is not a brokerage, execution venue, custodian, clearing service, settlement platform, or investment advisory service.

Orders, prices, balances, fills, and portfolio values shown in the application are generated or replayed for simulation purposes and must not be treated as live market instructions, executable prices, or records of any real account.

3. No advice and no live-market reliance

Nothing in TradingSeason constitutes financial, investment, legal, tax, accounting, regulatory, or compliance advice.

You and your organisation remain solely responsible for any real-world investment, treasury, legal, or compliance decision made outside the platform.

4. Client and user responsibilities

You must provide accurate registration details, protect your credentials, and use the platform only for legitimate and authorised business purposes.

You must not interfere with platform security, scrape protected data, impersonate another person, or use the platform to test abusive, manipulative, or unlawful trading conduct.

5. Records and platform controls

The platform records your acceptance of this version of the terms, together with the time you accepted. If the terms change, you will be asked to accept the new version before continuing.

The operator may suspend access, invalidate sessions, or restrict features where necessary to protect users, data integrity, or service operations.

6. Availability and risk notice

Availability, replay completeness, and simulation accuracy are not guaranteed, and simulated results may differ materially from live-market outcomes.

You should independently verify any concept, workflow, or output before using it in a live investing, brokerage, finance, or compliance setting.

These are the terms a user accepts in the TradingSeason dashboard. This document is product documentation, not legal advice.